

Furman University Study Away Program: Academic, Environmental, Physical & Health Expectations

Program: Discovering Psychology's European Roots (Germany, Austria, Switzerland)

Dates: May 9 - 25, 2018

*Request accommodations through the Student Office for Accessibility Resources (SOAR)

Course catalog description: Students will study the History of Psychology through visits to the original laboratories and cultures which gave rise to the discipline. Students will learn about connections between key researchers and explore the role of culture and historical context on the development of early psychological theories. Students will also reflect on the legacy of early psychological theorists by exploring their relevance for contemporary psychological approaches. This project will be informed by information gathered from museums and archives attended while traveling, as well as assigned readings. Historical figures to be studied include Wundt, Freud, Jung, Frankl, and Piaget, among others.
